TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—North Carolina was one of the thirteen original states. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 2,559,123, which represents an increase of 352,836, or 16 per cent, since 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of North Carolina from 1790, the year to which the first Federal census related, to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—North Carolina has 100 counties, of which 14 show decreases as compared with 1910. Four of these decreases, however, are due to reduction in area. Two new counties, Avery and Hoke, have been organized from parts of five others since 1910. (See Table 1.) It has been necessary, therefore, in preparing the maps on page 3, showing rates of increase or decrease in total and rural population between 1910 and 1920, to combine Avery, Caldwell, Mitchell, and Watauga Counties and to combine Hoke, Cumberland, and Robeson Counties.

state is 48,740 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 52.5 (see Table 1), as against 45.3 in 1910 and 38.9 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the North Carolina counties are the townships, which number 1,016. The secondary divisions are 468 in number, comprising 25 cities and 443 towns. One city, Wilmington, is coextensive with the township in which located, and each of 3 cities and 18 towns comprises parts of 2 or more townships. (See Table 2)

Density of population.—The total land area of the Rural population is defined as that residing outside of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more.
